A woman with short blonde hair, wearing a black jacket over a yellow top, sits on a light-colored leather sofa. Behind her, three framed pictures hang on a cream-colored wall. The leftmost frame contains a painting of a woman at a desk with a small photo of four children in the bottom left corner. The middle frame contains a religious poster with the text 'Not I but CHRIST.' and floral illustrations. The rightmost frame contains a group photograph of five people. A small black square object is on the wall to the right of the group photo.

“Rosemary ran away from home after a seemingly trivial argument and walked for 22km before hanging herself with baling twine. If only she had known about Missing People and their Runaway Helpline maybe she wouldn’t have felt she only had one option”

A photograph of a woman and two young girls sitting on a dark floral patterned sofa in a living room. The woman, on the right, is wearing a white jacket over a dark top and black trousers. She has a somber expression. To her left are two young girls. The girl on the far left is wearing a blue sweater over a white collared shirt and grey trousers. The girl in the middle is wearing a light blue hoodie and patterned tights. They are all looking directly at the camera with serious, sad expressions. The background shows a white wall with a framed landscape painting, a small framed portrait, and a white door. A wooden chair is visible behind the girls.

Still missing. Still searching. Still supporting.
